

A view of Life and your perspective from the center of all universes

Your relationship with the Universe

This picture shows where you (the OBSERVER) stand in the Universe, a “spec” on the overall concept of everything, where TIME and SPACE meet in your perspective.

The CONES represent past and future time and how it is shown through light (which is the fastest speed known to man and is based on the speed of light – the medium we use to understand things by). In essence, the cones represent everything that has happened and everything that can happen in the space time universe. Imagine that these CONES can travel all around the Spec that is you and can tilt in any desired direction. This would allow you to have a complete picture of everything that has been and everything that could be (even things we don’t presently know exist). Take away the restriction of light speed and we may be able to experience everything at the same time. Add Entanglement and we can see everything at all times from two equal, but opposite perspectives at once.

Now move the spec that is you up and down the planes of space and time beyond the HYPERSURFACE OF THE PRESENT to Hypersurfaces of the past and future. This will give you a perspective of everything that has happened and everything that can happen in our universe. Then consider all possible universes in all plans in the same manner and you are getting the overall picture of everything. Combine that perspective with ENTANGLEMENT and you will start to imagine how all things can be happening everywhere at the same time. Your Entangled opposite provides a balanced universe where you and your counterpart exist. All else are just things being experienced by other people and their Entangled partner. Sounds complicated, but it is really easy to understand with some thought and imagination.

This picture may appear simple and uncomplicated at first sight and you may find it hard to place yourself in the middle of everything, but after all we all live in our own universe and in our universe there is no death, just a changing of perspective and the vessel we use at the time to contain our being in a form viewable by others on the same plateau. Give that some thought and you will grow your understanding of life to its highest level. May the force be with you my friend and enjoy your journey forever.
